8. “Lydia Ourahmane: Tassili” at SculptureCenter, Queens

Born in Algeria in 1992, Lydia Ourahmane calls Algiers and Barcelona home. Her newly commissioned video work in her Sculpture Center solo show is based on her trip across the Tassili n’Ajjer plateau on the country’s border with Libya, a 10-day journey on foot requiring native Tuareg guides. The film also draws on the many prehistoric engravings and cave paintings found in the region, turning them into digital animations that evoke the spiritual nature of the plateau and the ancient rites conducted there.

Location: SculptureCenter, 44-19 Purves Street, Long Island City

Price: Free

Time: Thursday–Monday, 12 p.m.–6 p.m.
